DETAILED ACTION

Claims 1-6 are presently pending and considered.

Information Disclosure Statement

Applicant's IDS of 1/18/05 contains several references which are not non-patent references, and have not been supplied, nor has an English translation been supplied. The Examiner cannot consider the assessment of the Examiner of another country for US patentability purposes as binding on US examination.

However, in the process of examination, the Examiner obtained a copy of the Yudasaka document, and hence such reference is the only considered, and is also supplied here with this action to place such document into the record.

The following rejections are made because Applicant has not supplied an English copy of the Japanese priority document to determine if such would predate the applied art. Hence, the earliest priority date presently considered is the filing of the PCT priority application, 4/1/03.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(a) the invention was known or used by others in this country, or patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country, before the invention thereof by the applicant for a patent.

Art Unit: 1633

Claims 1-3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(a) as being anticipated by Yudasaka, et al. (2003) Chemical Physics Letters, 374(1-2): 132-36.

Yudasaka teaches the light excitation and hydrogen peroxide oxidation of selected size nanotubes (ABSTRACT). The processes were carried out at temperatures within the range given (e.g., p. 133). The oxidizing agent was hydrogen peroxide (ABSTRACT). Moreover the nanotubes were single-walled (e.g., ABSTRACT).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Yudasaka, et al. (2003) Chemical Physics Letters, 374(1-2): 132-36.

As shown Yudasaka teaches, and hence, also makes obvious claims 1-3 and 6.

With regard to Claims 4 and 5, the use of different wavelengths to selectively remove those of unwanted sizes would be obvious, as the quantum light relation is well known to the physicist and would necessarily be performable. Moreover, successive or concurrent oxidations are equally obvious because the physics of these light-molecule interactions are well known.
